Mother, May I? - Catalog Part II - MAY 2020

The COVID19 pandemic has prevented us from having our monthly exhibits. Actually, we are having the exhibits—virtually. In May, spring is in full bloom, and in the U.S., one of the most celebrated holidays is Mother's Day. We thought everyone could use a happy distraction from the Coronavirus, restrictions, danger and depression. What better way than making art. We received entries from all over the U. S. and the globe. A special thank you to all the artists who answered the Call for Entries.

We awarded prizes for 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place plus some honorable mentions. The criteria we used for awards was: (1) Is the artwork technically well done? (2) Does the artwork convey the theme without an explanation? (3) Does the artwork invoke view participation or emotion?

Enjoy a video—a virtual 4th Friday opening reception that shows many of the pieces submitted and of course, the award winners. Virtually Yours

This catalog of all accepted entries is published on our website. If you are interested in purchasing any of the artwork, contact us (804. 291.1400 or by email) and we will put you in touch with the artist. We are taking no commissions, so all the sales will go directly to the artists.

BEAUTY-2
Gouache on paper
10x7.5 $5000 Rupee

The language of beauty is my mother. I have painted my mother listening to a peaceful music lying on the top of a tree where she wishes to build an art studio for herself. I have tried to capture the emotions.

A Little Bit Longer
Acrylic
16x20 $500

Mother's Quote: - "Let me hold you a little more before you're not little anymore".

The funny thing about this is that the child seems to not understand how much these moment mean until they become a parent.

Poker Face
Graphite Pencil
14x11 NFS

This is one side of a 2-sided piece depicting a poker game from 2 perspectives. My Mum and Dad posed for this; putting on their best poker faces. Mum was a good sport by creating the meanest, ugliest face she could muster.

Love
Watercolor, marker
4"x6" $32

Flowers symbolize love to me: my mom's care and her unwavering curiosity about my growing into a kind human. She and I love flowers and chat about them all the time. Many photos cross paths in our phones. A never-ending stream of colors, shapes, and indeed love.

From The Eyes Project.

These eyes are my mother's eyes. I think they tell a lot about her and how she feels about life. While we're all wearing masks, all we see is people's eyes, the gateway to their souls.

A Conversation between Mother & Daughter

D: What is it like to be you?

M: I'm getting old. It's really hard getting old.

D: What's hard about it?

M: You just know that you don't have much time left in this world.

D: What do you want to do with your remaining time? What would you do if you had more time?

M: I'd like to go back, go backwards.

D: What would you do if you could go back and redo?

M: Travel. I don't feel like I've got the energy to travel like I'd like to.

D: Where would you go if you could?

M: I've always wanted to go to Egypt and travel to the pyramids and the tombs. And I'd like to go to more museums in the world like the Louvre. I've been there once, but I didn't see it particularly thoroughly.

D: If you had to describe yourself in just a few words - maybe 5 to 7 words - what words would you use?

M: Empathetic. Creative. Still vertical. Still driving which I'm very thankful for. A leader and caring and enthusiastic.

Botched (Mother)
Oil and Charcoal on Wood Panel

~12" x 10" $1409

When I thought I finished this portrait of my mother, I took it to show Grandmother. On the way back I tripped and let it fall; the nail got smudged. Grandmother had to have a part in making my mother, not only out of flesh, but out of paint too!

Queen of Wakanda
Pen and ink
27x17 $425

*Inspired by the film Black Panther.
She is the Queen of Wakanda.
And she is the mother of T'Challa.
She was played by Angela Bassett who gave so much power in the role. I love African prints so it's present in my work.*
